Course Descriptions:

COMM 381-01A: STP: Introduction to Rhetorical Theory

Instructor: Aric Putnam

Course surveys theories of human symbol use to explore the intersections of public knowledge, aesthetics, and politics. Students will study particular theorists in their historical contexts and investigate themes that endure throughout the rhetorical tradition from Greek antiquity to contemporary philosophy. Ultimately, we will attempt to discover for ourselves how a rhetorical perspective makes meaning of the world.

Pre-requisite: COMM 101 or permission of instructor.

CORE 390-12A: Senior Seminar: Innocents Abroad, or the Holy Land in the Middle East

Instructor: Roger Kasprick

How can we tell friend from foe? How do persons of several different cultures, nationalities, religions and personal sympathies live together in the same small area? Who makes decisions, and how did the U.S. become so intimately involved for the past 50 years? How do we distinguish policies from propaganda? What are the sources of conflict, and what are the reasons for hope? Why has America turned attention to Iraq and away from Israel/Palestine? In looking at the ethical and moral underpinning of Holy Land policies, we will at the same time necessarily probe and analyze the values which guide our own personal choices.

GWST 290-01A & 02A: Topics in Research: Men's Studies Research (2 or 4 credits—register for appropriate section)

Instructor: Gar Kellom

Three ongoing projects in the men's center are offered with the possibility of developing an additional project: a small group social norms study of masculinity, an international men's stories project and research for a forthcoming book on designing effective programs and services for men in colleges and universities. Enrollment by permission of instructor. Class time to be arranged with those enrolled.

HIST 116-01A: South Asia Before 1500 (HML pending)

Instructor: Purnima Dhavan

A survey of the history of South Asia from 2500 BC – 1500. Course focuses on topics such as the origins of diverse religious, ethnic, and caste identities in South Asia, South Asia as the birthplace of three major world religions (Hinduism, Buddhism, and Islam), social and historical trends in the rise and fall of several South Asian civilizations and empires, including the Indus Valley Civilization, the Mauryan Empire, the Gupta Empire, and the rise of Afghan warrior aristocracies.

HIST 118-01A: History of Islam (HML pending)

Instructor: Purnima Dhavan

This class will focus on the rise and fall of Islam in Arabia and its diffusion into the Middle East, Central Asia, and South Asia. To understand the social, cultural, and historical changes that occurred in Islamic societies, we will study the history of Islam from many different perspectives: nobility, scholars, crusaders, peasants, leaders, women, as well as the communities on the borderlands of the Islamic world.
